CommHIT Everywhere: Advancing Rural Response with Drones

ABOUT GORDON

Gordon Folkes III is Founder and CEO of Archer First Response Systems, a company pioneering 911-integrated emergency drone logistics that help first responders deliver time-critical medical supplies faster and more efficiently.

Since founding ArcherFRS in 2014, he has worked at the forefront of emergency drone delivery, advancing technologies and operational models that support public safety agencies in improving response times and patient outcomes. Under his leadership, ArcherFRS has helped establish innovative approaches for deploying lifesaving resources, including AEDs, naloxone, whole blood and blood products, and other critical medical supplies directly to emergencies. Today, ArcherFRS technology supports emergency communications and response systems across the country. As a partner in CommHIT Everywhere, Gordon will use drone-enabled medical logistics to strengthen rural healthcare infrastructure, expand access to critical resources, and connect remote communities to the care they need when minutes matter most. He earned his degree from Florida State University and remains committed to applying emerging technology to improve community health and save lives.
