ABOUT JACKSON

Jackson Williams serves as VP of Enterprise & Growth Sales at Tenovi, a remote patient monitoring company focused on simplifying connected care.

He works with healthcare organizations to deploy and sustain remote monitoring programs that help care teams track patient health outside traditional clinical settings and intervene earlier when concerns arise. At Tenovi, Williams helps healthcare providers, health systems, and community-based organizations implement remote patient monitoring solutions that improve patient engagement, streamline workflows, and support long-term management of chronic conditions. As a partner in CommHIT Everywhere, Tenovi supports the program's remote patient monitoring initiatives by helping connect patients, devices, and care teams through reliable, easy-to-use technology. This work enables participating providers to receive timely health information from patients between visits, supporting earlier intervention, better chronic disease management, and stronger connections between rural patients and their care teams. Williams earned a Bachelor of Science in Exercise Science from Trine University.
